Acknowledgements

There are infinitely more people than fit in this paragraph who have made this recital possible and my time at Loyola so amazing, but I would like to take a moment to acknowledge a few of them. Thank you so much to my cello professor, Philip von Maltzahn, for teaching me so much in such a short amount of time and for supporting me not only through this recital, but in my journey as a cellist through the end of college and on to the future. I cannot tell you how much I have enjoyed my lessons these past two years. Thank you to my previous teachers, including Allen Nisbet and Kent Jensen, without whose instruction and tireless support I absolutely would not have been able to get to where I am today. To Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg, Amy Thiaville, Jean Montés, and all the other professors and Loyola faculty who are too many to name here, your instruction and encouragement has made my time at Loyola immensely fruitful and enjoyable and I truly looked forward to class every day because of all of you. There is no way I can express how much my friends have supported me in one paragraph, but just know that each of you has brought me so much joy and comfort and I can't wait to see where we all go from here. Finally, I would like to thank my family for the innumerable things they have done for me throughout college and my whole life to make it possible for me to be where I am today. Everything I have accomplished has been made possible because of their love and support.
